Indian Graduates with Foreign Medical Degrees

What does the law say?

- Indian students can seek medical qualification from any recognized medical education institution in a foreign country.
- Such students are required to register with a State Medical Council (SMC) in order to practice in India after obtaining their degree.
- SMC can register a student with foreign medical qualification only after his/she appears and passes in the Foreign Medical Graduate Examination (FMGE) conducted by the National Medical Commission (NMC). The FMGE is conducted twice a year and a student has to score a minimum of 50% marks pass this exam.
- This is a statutory requirement as per section 13 (4A) of the IMC Act, 1956 amended in 2002. Students who hold an under graduate as well as post graduate medical degree from the following countries need not take the FMGE and they can directly be registered by the SMC.
